

Global and Intercultural Communication Digital Badge Module

SEPTEMBER 12 – NOVEMBER 17

How Does it Work?

Northeastern University's Global Experience Office is offering this non-credit educational module in partnership with Skillstack. Learners who complete the module will earn a Digital Badge in Global and Intercultural Communication (Level 2: Intermediate) through Credly, which can be imported into LinkedIn profiles and digital resumes. The module is self-paced and fully asynchronous but follows the Northeastern University academic term calendars (these dates will be posted on the module Canvas site). The instructor will send reminders and provide feedback to learners throughout the term. To earn credit for this module, learners in this module must plan to complete the assignments and projects by the end of the academic term in which they start the module. Please visit this link for more information about the Northeastern University academic terms.

Who is it For?

The module is open to all learners at all levels. Although designed at the intermediate level, the module can be customized to include some advanced content.

What Will I Learn?

What is intercultural and global communication? What does it mean to be a “global citizen”? This module focuses on the latest theories of global and intercultural communication. Learners will be expected to complete reflections, writing assignments, a larger research-based project, and a self-assessment tool and will receive written feedback throughout the module from the instructor. The instructor will also be available for virtual office hours by appointment for additional feedback as needed.
